

DEREK SANDERSON

Two-time Stanley Cup champion Derek Sanderson has joined the Road Hockey To Conquer Cancer team!

It will come as no surprise to most that GQ Magazine named Derek Sanderson one of its Coolest Athletes of All-Time in its January 2011 issue. At various times through his storied NHL career, Derek was also the world's highest paid athlete, was named Cosmopolitan Magazine's 'Sexiest Athlete' and co-owned wildly popular bars with New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath. But we mustn't forget that he was primarily a great hockey player, earning Stanley Cup championships with the Boston Bruins during a career that also included stints with the NHL's New York Rangers, St. Louis Blues, Vancouver Canucks and Pittsburgh Penguins as well as the Philadelphia Flyers of the World Hockey Association. While his colourful life is legendary, today, Derek is an executive in a Boston investment firm, working with young athletes and other high worth individuals. Derek is also involved in a number of charities, many involving cancer, from which he is a survivor.